This event would not have been possible without the help of Doreen and Steve Spriet for decorating the pool area so festive for the event. Michelle Schnepel and Barbara Laube for stuffing 600 eggs and getting 100 gift bags ready, as well as Carter Weir for making sure donuts and drinks were provided at the event.

Furthermore a huge THANK YOU to all the volunteers for helping to get this event organized and such a huge success.

DROUGHT - HOW BAD IS IT?

Really Bad!

Big swaths of the West – Nevada, Arizona, and Utah – are suffering from prolonged droughts. In California, 2013 was the driest on record (and records go back more than 100 years). While 2014's rains have helped somewhat, the state is still facing a situation nearly as bad as the devastating drought of 1976-1977. Many parts of California have received only 1/3 of their normal annual rainfall. Sierra snowpack – which is where most of California gets its water – is down to 25 percent of normal.

- WHERE DO I CUT?

In many parts of the West, more than half the average household's water is used outdoors. So start there!

DO YOU HAVE A WATER SMART HOME?

This free home water survey will score your home's water use efficiency and identify potential water savings needed. Recommendations will include money- and water-saving rebates and no cost activities that can help you become more water efficient.

The free survey can be whole home (indoor and outdoor) or outdoor only. Please visit <http://www.ocwatersmart.com/> for guidelines and application.

PLUMBING PREPAREDNESS

A plumbing leak that springs inside your home requires quick action. That's why everyone in your household should know how to shut off the water supply. Individual appliances should each have a shutoff valve. But if closing the valve doesn't work, turn off the home's main water supply. The location of the main shutoff varies from house to house – don't wait until an emergency.
